

ANNIE L. ANDREWS

Annie Andrews is currently serving as the Assistant Director of the Competitive Sourcing and Privatization Office for the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Installations. Among her responsibilities, Mrs. Andrews leads the Department of Defense's efforts by managing the execution of the Department's Competitive Sourcing Program. This includes developing policies and procedures for how to implement OMB Circular A-76 guidance.

Before assuming her current position, Mrs. Andrews was the Air Force Program Manager for The Air Force Commercial Activities Program for ten years where she was responsible for developing Air Force policy to implement OMB Circular A-76 and manage execution of their program. Prior to this job, she served in the position of wartime planner for the Air Force Intelligence Agency's War and Mobilization Plan. She has also held a variety of Air Force positions in various offices including Personnel Programs, National Reconnaissance Office, and Strategic Operations.

Prior to her assignments with the Department of Defense and Air Force, Mrs. Andrews worked for an Olympic College (Bremerton, Washington) education extension program in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Mrs. Andrews has attended the University of Texas at El Paso and has graduated from Northern Virginia Community College. Mrs. Andrews and her husband, Bob, reside in Fairfax, Virginia.
